

Life can be harsh for animals in Japan

NOT WANTED ANY MORE* — NOW SAFE
AT A JAWS RESCUE CENTRE

The Japan Animal Welfare Society was founded over 30 years ago by a handful of Westerners appalled at conditions in pounds and laboratories. Today, in every area of abuse, JAWS is the voice of concern and protest, has helped to promote an Animal Protection Law and established a harmonious working relationship with many government officials. Every effort is made to change old attitudes — widespread indifference to animal suffering, little thought for their basic needs, "pets" callously abandoned when owners no longer want them.

Volunteers, mainly Japanese, work in all conditions to rescue thousands of sick, injured, mutilated, frightened, hysterical creatures. JAWS endeavours, by example and education, to improve the lot of Japan's animals and wildlife. We need help — could you help us? Like to know more? Please send for our literature.

88/90 WESTON STREET, LONDON SE1 3QH

Tel: 01-407 8947 Registered Charity 244534

Please mention BBC Wildlife