Scientific experiments reveal...

YOUR PET CAN READ YOUR MIND

AMAZING NEW evidence reveals that family pets can read human minds — and even detect serious illnesses.

The sensational discovery was announced after scientists studied a group of dogs that are able to sense epileptic seizures in their owners...before they occur!

Excited researchers expect it to open the door to revolutionary advances in the early detection and treatment of a host of diseases.

"If dogs can be trained to give early warnings, they might make life a whole lot easier for us all," notes Reina Berner, executive director of the Epilepsy Institute in New York.

"It will particularly benefit people with epilepsy because it will give them time to take precautions to avoid injury during seizures."

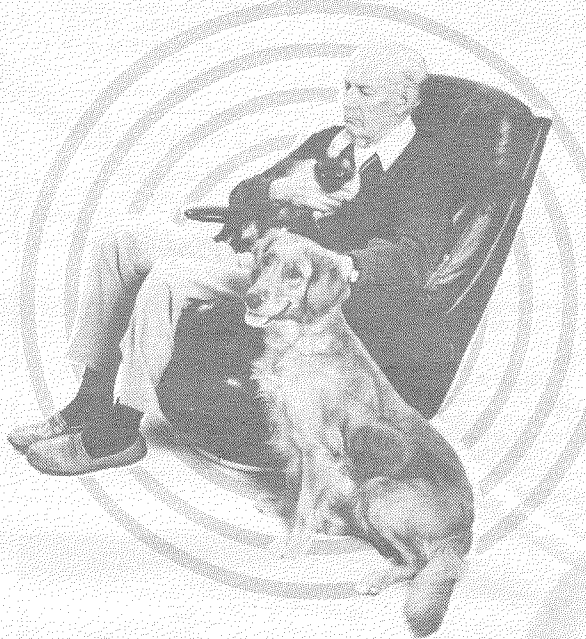

Animal behavior experts have long suspected that some pets possess incredible mind-reading potential but the new studies provide the first solid evidence, they say.

CASE REPORT #1: In Japan, 20 dogs were placed in individual, soundproofed cubicles. They were separated from their owners who were instructed to visualize mental commands, such as sit, roll over, lie down, stand up.

Result: In 86% of the cases, the dog performed the command visualized by its owner.

CASE REPORT #2: French researchers performed a similar experiment with cats.

Owners were asked to create a mental picture of a vicious, snarling attack dog. Amazingly, 67% of the cats immediately became highly excited and started arching their backs and hissing.

CASE REPORT #3: A double-blind study in a West Germany sleep lab produced even more astonishing results that confirmed the amazing psychic bond between humans and pets — even when we're asleep.

Thirty-one dogs and their owners were hooked up to sensitive equipment that measures brain wave activity.

The doctors were stunned by what they found. People and their pets actually SHARE dreams!

At precisely the time the human volunteer entered the REM (rapid eye movement) phase of sleep that indicates dreaming, the dogs did, too.

The effect was s

HARLEY THE WONDER DOG Baffles Docs

He can 'see' inside his owner's brain!

VICKY DOROSHENKO's life has completely turned around...thanks to a four-year-old golden retriever called Harley.

Five years ago, Vicky, 24, developed epilepsy after a serious car accident.

Since then, she's been suffering seizures almost every day.

"It's been a nightmare," she told the EXAMINER. "The epilepsy was completely ruling my life."

"But all that changed when I got Harley."

Baffled scientists say her pet possesses the amazing ability to detect subtle electrical changes in her brain that precede an epileptic seizure.

Now, whenever the Tacoma,

Washington, woman is about to have a seizure, Harley starts barking wildly.

"It's just amazing," she beamed. "He's barked out warnings from several yards away."

"And he's 100% accurate."

"Whenever he starts barking in that special way, I settle myself into a safe position where I won't be hurt when the seizure occurs."

VICKY & HARLEY are on the same wave length.
