

GERMANS EAT DOGS

A GERMAN village has shocked animal lovers by admitting it eats — DOGS.

The meat is served as a delicacy at special events.

But now Goldlauter, in the east of Germany, faces prosecution by the local animal protection society.

The sick custom is against hygiene laws.

But the villagers see nothing wrong in it. They say it started during the war when there was no food and was allowed to continue after in what was then East Germany.

5 far
12.10.92