

Memo to [REDACTED]: letter from A. [REDACTED] May 15, 1995

I have absolutely no problem with being criticized as long as the critics have done their homework and know what they are talking about.

The rest of Ms. [REDACTED]'s letter deals with what, in my opinion, will be the eventual demise of the well-being of animals, namely infighting. Because I'd rather spend my energy in positive work for animals, I don't see any point in dealing with that. I would like to suggest, however, that Ms. [REDACTED]'s implications border libel and have no foundation what-so-ever.

[REDACTED] I hope I have answered your inquiries. Please feel free to send Ms. Haselgrove a copy of this memo if you see fit. Hope to see you soon!

Best regards,

Thought you'd like to see this.
Hope this is the end because
I'm not planning on participating in a word-war with Ashlea.
